

The Bridge

Two cliffs, a gap, and planks. The far side is real, the drop is named, and every plank is a step someone has walked before.

1 The near cliff: here

NO JUDGEMENT

Where do they stand today, in plain facts?

The near cliff is solid. It holds them fine, it just does not go anywhere.

2 The far cliff: there

THEIR WORDS

Where do they want to stand, in THEIR words?

Slightly higher, and real: their language, not your copy.

3 The drop

NAME IT ONCE, KINDLY

What happens to people who jump the gap without a bridge?

Why DIY fails. Once, factually, then leave it alone.

4 The three planks

YOUR METHOD

Plank 1: name + the step + proof someone crossed on it

Plank 2: name + the step + proof someone crossed on it

Plank 3: name + the step + proof someone crossed on it

The handrail: what keeps them safe the whole way across?

The support that never leaves.

The punchline

Usually: you don't need more courage, you need a bridge that has held everyone before you.
