

The Value Pyramid

Where does your offer's value land? Great offers work on all four layers: fix something today, prevent something tomorrow, improve what already works, transform who the client is.

1 Your example

2 MIN

What is the offer you are mapping?

One sentence: the thing you sell, who buys it, roughly what they pay.

2 The base: fix

TODAY'S PAIN

What burning problem do you solve the day they start?

Something they would pay to make go away this week.

Compressed to five words or fewer, plus your score (red / amber / green)

3 Layer two: prevent

6-12 MONTHS OUT

What future problem will never happen because they worked with you?

The expensive mistake or slow decline they will now never meet.

Compressed to five words or fewer, plus your score (red / amber / green)

4 Layer three: improve

MEASURABLY BETTER

What already-good thing gets measurably better?

Your best buyers are not broken. What do they already do well that you multiply?

Compressed to five words or fewer, plus your score (red / amber / green)

5 The summit: transform

IDENTITY

Who do they become?

Not what they get. Who they are after.

Compressed to five words or fewer, plus your score (red / amber / green)

6 The value sentence

PUT IT TOGETHER

Say the whole pyramid in one sentence

We fix [base] this week, so you never face [prevent], while [improve] gets better, until you become [transform].

Which layer does your marketing lead with today, and is that right?

Strangers buy the base. Friends of the work buy the summit.
